

CLINICAL ENCOUNTER NOTE

Patient Name: Robert Chen

Age: 45

Sex: Male

MRN: SYN-88210

Date of Encounter: 2026-03-15

SUBJECTIVE:

Chief Complaint: Sore throat and nasal congestion for 3 days.

History of Present Illness:

45 yo male presents with mild sore throat, nasal congestion, and mild headache starting 3 days ago.

Denies fever, chills, shortness of breath, chest pain, or dysphagia.

Allergies: No known drug allergies (NKDA).

Current Medications: None.

OBJECTIVE:

Vital Signs:

- Blood Pressure (BP): 120/78 mmHg
- Heart Rate (HR): 72 bpm
- Temperature: 36.8 C
- Respiratory Rate (RR): 16 breaths/min
- Oxygen Saturation (SpO2): 99% on room air

Physical Examination:

- General: Alert and oriented, in no acute distress.
- HEENT: Mild posterior pharyngeal erythema without exudate. Tympanic membranes intact. Nasal mucosa mildly edematous with clear rhinorrhea.
- Lungs: Clear to auscultation bilaterally. No wheezing, rales, or rhonchi.
- Cardiovascular: Regular rate and rhythm, normal S1 and S2, no murmurs.

ASSESSMENT:

Acute viral upper respiratory tract infection.

PLAN:

1. Supportive care: adequate oral hydration, rest, and warm saline gargles.
2. Acetaminophen 500mg oral every 6 hours as needed for throat pain or headache.
3. Saline nasal spray 2 sprays each nostril twice daily.
4. Return precautions reviewed: seek immediate medical attention if high fever, difficulty breathing, or inability to tolerate fluids occurs.